

What is CART?

Communication Access Realtime Translation (CART), aka Realtime Captioning, is a speech-to-text process that brings communication access to the deaf and hard of hearing. Accurate and complete text representations of lectures or dialogue are simultaneously prepared and displayed to the consumer at natural language speeds.

The CART provider (captioner) can be onsite or operate remotely (where the audio can be clearly and accurately transmitted via phone or internet). The consumer (client) views the text through a standard internet browser in real time and may receive a complete transcript as well.

What is captioning?

Captioning (or subtitling) uses the written word to increase the accessibility of videos by those that are deaf or hard of hearing. Captioning your videos can increase your audience by as much as 25%! Not only does it make your video ADA compliant, it also assists those that are learning English and it helps your videos be found by search engines.

Approximately 10% of Americans have some form of hearing loss. Approximately 10% of deaf people know sign language. CART and captioning speech-to-text services from eCaptions are the key to effective communication for the rest.

For all your CART & captioning needs

Providing speech-to-text services to enable equal access to those who are deaf or hard of hearing.

Why CART?

CART is provided by those concerned with both ensuring that their material is accessible to the widest possible audience and achieving compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

CART:

- ◇ Provides complete communication access
- ◇ Promotes independent learning/understanding
- ◇ Gives everybody the confidence to participate in the conversation
- ◇ Benefits those who are unable to take notes
- ◇ Eases the burden and strain of hearing.

CART benefits everybody in a noisy environment!

CART is recognized, under the ADA, as an assistive technology that enables "effective communication access."

CART makes it possible for everyone to understand and enjoy your message. Make your event more accessible; discover how to reach a whole new audience!

Where is CART used?

Classrooms	Conventions
Performances	Presentations
Seminars	Workshops
Meetings	Training Sessions
Webinars	Job Interviews
Lectures	Appointments
Conference Calls	Therapy Sessions
	Religious Ceremonies

Anywhere compliance with the ADA is needed to eliminate discrimination against those with hearing disabilities.

Anywhere you need to ensure that the audience has the full benefit of receiving and understanding all that is spoken.
